

Giving Done Right Draft Season 4 Trailer:

PHIL: It's hard to give money away...Or rather, maybe it's hard to know whether your charitable giving is making a difference. Most of us weren't taught how to be effective donors.

It turns out, it takes a unique set of skills, as well as practice. But don't worry, we've got your back, along with research and experiences and even some inspiration to help you learn. I'm Phil Buchanan, the president of the Center for Effective Philanthropy. My co-host Grace Nicolette and I are bringing you the latest season of Giving Done Right, the show with everything you need to know to make an impact with your charitable giving.

GRACE: Whether you give away a few hundred dollars a year, a few thousand, or even a few million, we're going to help you to be smarter and to give more effectively. This season, we're talking to inspiring donors, visionary nonprofit leaders and activists who are changing the world for the better. We'll talk about poverty:

Jesus Gerena - All of that generates more impact for those communities and for our government than everything that we have to do when we deprive people and they don't have enough.

GRACE: And what donors can do about climate change...

Dr. Ayana Elizabeth Johnson - We have really good data on what the projected changes are going to be, and so it's really important to keep that in mind that we're not investing in things that don't make sense in the context of a changing world.

GRACE: And even how to use AI for good.

Vilas Dhar - I was always just struck not by a question about technology, but about a question of fairness and justice. If we had all these cool toys, why couldn't we use it to help people make their lives better?

PHIL: A new season begins on Sept 19th. So be sure to subscribe on Apple podcasts, Spotify, or wherever you get your podcasts.