

Giving Done Right Draft Season 5 Trailer:

Mark: I think we're in for a tough couple of years. There's no sugarcoating it. The cuts that have come from the US, but also globally, some of the setbacks, that's gonna take some time to weather and manage and try and minimize the impact.

PHIL: I'm Phil Buchanan, the president of the Center for Effective Philanthropy. My co-host Grace Nicolette and I are excited to bring you a new season of Giving Done Right, the show exploring what it takes to be an effective donor in this time of unprecedented challenge.

GRACE: Whether you give away a few hundred dollars a year, a few thousand, or millions, we're going to help you to be smarter and to give more effectively. This season, we are excited to bring you conversations that will help you navigate the current difficult context for nonprofits and donors alike. Like with the head of the Gates Foundation about how givers should think about and respond to the massive cuts in global aid.

MARK: That impact is real. It means tragically, this is almost certain to be the first year of the Gates Foundation's lifetime 2025, where we see an increase in preventable child mortality."

And people interested in grassroots change efforts.

Happy Mwende Kinyili [00:19:34] Literally, let's go to the people who are most affected, the person who's living the horrible situation and say to them, what's your best idea? Here's some money to make your best ideas come real. Let's try that, at least let's try that and see how much further we can go.

Plus inspiring donors who will restore your faith in humanity...

Dilnaz Waraich [00:06:42] For me, the moment the transfer of wealth occurred, I had a purpose and I was very driven towards that purpose. I don't think everyone has that purpose, people take a while to figure out where they wanna go, what they wanna do. But /// I kept going back to the way my parents raised me, the world that I saw and the world I wanted to change, the world, I wanted hopefully build together with other funders

PHIL: A new season begins on September 4th. So be sure to subscribe wherever you get your podcasts.

DILNAZ CUT OPTIONS:

Dilnaz Waraich [00:00:02] You know, Americans are just some of the most generous people, and generosity is the bedrock of America. So how do we keep telling generosity stories of American Muslims, of American Christians and Jews and people of other faith? That's how we get back to talking about our faith traditions in a good place.

Dilnaz Waraich [00:06:42] For me, the moment the transfer of wealth occurred, I had a purpose and I was very driven towards that purpose. I don't think everyone has that purpose, people take a while to figure out where they wanna go, what they wanna do. But for some reason, I think I kept going back to the way my parents raised me, the world that I saw and the world I wanted to change, the world, I wanted hopefully build together with other funders

Happy Mwende Kinyili [00:19:34] Literally, let's go to the people who are most affected, the person who's living the horrible situation and say to them, what's your best idea? Here's some money to make your best ideas come real. Let's try that, at least let's try that and see how much further we can go.